

Japanese Zelkova

A great choice for large gardens and park locations, the Japanese Zelkova spreads from a vase shape when young, to a domed broad crown. The deciduous Autumn foliage turns from green to yellow to bright red creating an impressive display before leaves fall in the Winter months. Generally preferring cooler climates, the Japanese Zelkova will adapt to tolerate dry periods once established, but it will be grateful for a little extra attention and deep watering.

 Botanic name	Zelkova serrata
 Origin	Japan, Korea, Taiwan
 Typical height	20-35m
 Typical width	18m
 Foliage Type	Deciduous
 Leaf	Dark green
 Bark	Smooth
 Flowers	Green and very small
 Fruit Pod	Green and bean-shaped

