

The 2018/19 Good Gift Guide

On these pages you'll find many gifts that give twice, or even thrice! Whether you care about protecting rainforests, disadvantaged children, or homeless puppies, you can buy beautiful gifts AND make a positive difference to the world.

All of the retailers listed here actively seek to make a positive impact on a range of social, cultural or environmental issues. Through your purchase, you will be supporting innovative and inspirational projects in Australia and across the world. All this while shopping - amazing!

Click through to one of the following categories to find the perfect gift:

- Food
- Homewares
- Kids
- Arts and Crafts
- Clothes
- Greeting Cards
- Weird and Wonderful – for the person who has everything
- One Stop Shop – all your gifts in one place
- Support a Charity – give a gift where it's really needed

1. Food – delicious treats that give back

Based in Parramatta

Give the coffee-lover in your life barista courses from foundations through to latte art. Darcy St Project is a social enterprise providing barista and hospitality training for indigenous, youth at risk, recent migrants and mature aged workers. Coffee beans and “community pods” (Nespresso compatible) are also available in-store.

Mildura Chocolate Company isn't just a purveyor of fine chocolate. It also provides employment for adults with a disability or experiencing disadvantage. All products are handmade using local produce. They'll even custom-make wrapping for you!

Farmhouse is an online gateway to Australia's best farmers and artisan producers. Everything you buy is produced, packed and shipped by the producers themselves. Chocolate, alcohol, produce, cheeses, beard care, tastings and workshops, pet care, craft products and much more!

Share a love of tea and coffee with gifts from The Social Cup. You can buy organic tea and coffee products that are ethically sourced from Fairtrade farmers and women's initiatives around the world. 50% of profits are donated to charities working to empower women and children through sustainable livelihoods and education.

A Summerland House Farm hamper is more than delicious nuts, condiments and puddings – it's also an investment in employment opportunities and social inclusion for people with a disability. The company employs over 90 people with a disability and all the products in their hampers are grown by staff or sourced locally in Northern NSW.

Eat me Chutneys makes delicious condiments from wonky and bruised fruit and vegetables that would normally be destined for landfill. Try their tamarind and fig “rescue” chutney, or organic cherry and clove pickle. There are gift vouchers for the indecisive.

The Organic Grocer delivers fresh, organically grown fruit and veges. The weekly fruit and veggie boxes start at $40. Save your loved one the trouble of going to the shops for a while.

2. Homewares – beautiful things making a difference

Based in Parramatta

The Bower has everything you need for the holiday season, from extra tables and chairs for dinner guests to a refurbished bike for the kids – shop in-store or online. Or give the gift of knowledge with a workshop on basic carpentry, furniture restoration or introductory upholstery.

SisterWorks run workshops and sells a range of beautiful homewares handcrafted by migrant, asylum seeker or refugee women in Melbourne, Australia. They gain financial independence by developing their entrepreneurial skills.

Blessed Earth sells clothing, manchester, rugs and carpets made from certified organically-produced materials. They even have organic cotton yoga mats and pure wool car mats! Their range now includes sustainable cookware (like low-carbon steel non-stick frypans), mosquito nets, homeopathic items, quality knives, bags, and much more.

Buy cushions, lamp shades, curtains and rugs in the most gorgeous eco-fabrics including hemp, designed and made in Sydney by ClothFabric.

Silk Lotus is a social enterprise importing beautiful hand-made jewellery, textiles and accessories that are gorgeous and ethical. The items are from small producer groups with profits donated to aid agencies for greater impact.

Sampan specialises in ethical and eco-friendly gifts and homewares from South East Asia and India. All products are handmade from natural, recycled or renewable resources, right down to re-using packaging when shipping customer orders.

3. Kids – gifts for children with heart, inspiration and fun

For a beautiful range of timber and natural toys for children of all ages, head to Malvern (Melbourne) store Honeybee. You'll find non-toxic face pencils, nativity sets, music and jewellery boxes, child-sized gardening gloves, wobble boards, castles and even a kitchen sink.

The Trading Circle sells gorgeous gifts for children including hand-stitched cloth books, purses and pencil cases, jewellery, and three-way story dolls (like Red Riding Hood who turns upside down to become Grandma and the Wolf). There are gifts for adults such as silk scarves, delicious fair trade chocolates, bags and baskets. Browse in-store in Summer Hill (Sydney) or online.

Little Earth Nest has a lovely range of toys, from fairy doors to pirate ships. There's a dump truck made from recycled plastic, a sustainable timber Victorian dolls house, recycled silver earrings, a gardening board game made from 75% recycled materials, natural bath crayons, and eco-chalk for hair colouring (instead of spray cans!).

Multi-Powered Products is the shop for gadget-lovers big and small. Solar-powered backpacks and MP3 players, solar powerbanks, wind-up torches, radios and toys like remote controlled buggies, a gyroscope robot and a salt water fuel cell engine car.

Homely Creatures sells fair trade items designed in Australia and handmade in Bolivia and Nepal. The cushions, wall art and "creatures" are unique and stylish additions to a nursery, and made from natural materials.

100 Story Building produces books and a quarterly magazine edited by young people for young people. Read some crazy tales and find a whole lot of inspiration to get writing, drawing and creating. Inspire a young reader or writer you know with a magazine or workshop.

4. Arts and Crafts – art changing the world

Welcome Studio sells beautiful illustrative art prints by local Sydney makers, with all profits supporting refugees and people seeking asylum in NSW.

Based in Parramatta

Parramatta Clay and Arts Inc. Gallery and Studio sell a range of handmade ceramic items including bowls, platters, mugs, jugs, ornamental jewellery and Christmas decorations, as well as gift vouchers for classes. Shop 5, 10-14 Hunter Street, Parramatta.

Enterprise Learning Projects supports remote Aboriginal communities to establish and grow micro enterprises. They have a beautiful and bright range of jewellery, posters and cards, as well as tea that clears blocked noses, a colouring book for kids and Bush Soap.

Find a beautiful, unique or quirky piece of art from QArt Gallery. Their gallery is full of work featuring the exceptional talents of artists with intellectual disability. Find original paintings, prints, greeting cards, art tiles and even hand-embroidered bags.

Notely sells beautiful notebooks printed with sustainable ink onto FSC certified paper, and with 100% post-consumer waste recycled, carbon neutral paper on the inside. Planet friendly, attractive AND supporting real artists.

Empower International sells a range of gorgeous hand made products, hand-embroidered bags, jewellery, cards, toys and cloth baby books. Purchasing from Empower International provides financial sustainability for women and their children who have been impacted by, or who are at risk of, sexual exploitation. Find them in St Kilda (Melbourne) or online.

5. Clothes – this year socks and undies are a great present!

Socks that fight poverty? The Conscious Step donates a portion from every pair of socks sold to organisations that protect oceans, fight hunger, treat HIV, provide clean water, educate kids, plant trees and work to end poverty and provide disaster relief.

Is your man's bum improving lives? If not, race over to the Buy Undies, Give Undies website to get him some comfy black undies and a child in Africa or Vanuatu will also get a pair (which helps stop the spread of disease).

The Social Outfit is a fashion label with a difference. It employs and trains people from refugee and new migrant communities in clothing production, retail, design and marketing. Collaborating with fashion designers, they hand-make clothing, homewares and stationery.

h i l d a

Apart from selling a gorgeous collection of batik clothes and accessories from Ghana, West Africa, Hilda is an Australian brand that's providing regular employment and support to women in Ghana.

This Australian brand of intimate-wear helps girls and women take care of the planet by replacing disposable items with washable. Periods, incontinence and breast leaks are all made easy with Modibodi's comfy and stylish undies, bras, singlets and even swimwear.

Gideon Shoes is a social enterprise operated by the Ted Noffs Foundation to provide more resources for the community. The shoes are handmade in Australia in fair working conditions, using sustainable materials like kangaroo leather, rubber and organic cotton.

6. Weird and wonderful – for the person who has everything (or is just really hard to buy for!)

Based in Parramatta

Send your loved ones on a mouth-watering food adventure in Sydney! Taste Cultural Food Tours is building strong social connections and cross-cultural understanding through unique food tours. The tours also make memorable parties or office events.

Based in Parramatta

Jeenee Mobile sell mobile phone plans and use the profits to donate free services, develop accessible technology and run technology training programs to help people living with disabilities improve their lives.

Based in Parramatta

Addventagous has gift vouchers for the person in your life who has forgotten how to ride a bike, or who never knew. There are a range of classes to build bike skills, confidence and safety, catering for a range of abilities and cycling interests.

Send someone a gorgeous flower arrangement from Angkor Flowers and you'll also be helping them to provide employment and training opportunities and financial independence for women from low-skilled migrant and refugee backgrounds in Sydney.

RSPCA offers presents for both animal lovers and the animals themselves. Designer dog collars, a massive array of presents for kids (like cute animal shoe caps!), books and DVDs or even Christmas presents for pets.

With the gift of a lottery ticket from yourtown (formerly BoysTown) you will support Kids Helpline and your loved one could be inviting you over for tea in their new luxury home or taking you for a drive in their prestige car.

For a really unusual present, how about a box of toilet paper? The who gives a crap rolls are made from 100% recycled paper or bamboo. They're Australian-owned, with half their profits used to build toilets in the developing world. Check out their limited edition extra-soft rolls!

If the surfer in your life takes ages to get his/her wetsuit on, Surf Sock is the answer they didn't realise they were looking for. This handy item, made from reclaimed sails, gets a wetsuit over a foot in a second and then provides a nice, dry place for a mobile phone.

Designed in Bondi Beach and made in Western Sydney, the 2x0 quality bags are made from upcycled billboards, firehoses, banners, sail cloth and rubber. From laptop sleeves to totes and tiny "fortune cookie" bags for coins.

The Pluralist make watches with numbers in kanji or Arabic, and donate $5 from every watch sold to a not-for-profit organisation. Stylish and different!

Tell Socially Conscious Club the cause that gets you fired up and they'll put tell you which Box to buy. Buy once or subscribe to a plan that sends you inspiring products every month.

Support your favourite charity when you buy a case of your favourite wine from Goodwill Wine. Vegan wines are available for your animal-loving friends, too!

Australian Red Cross merchandise including solar powered radios, a book about Man Caves, tea towels, herbal dog wash, Christmas puddings, room fresheners and much more.

Dresden Optics make lightweight frames for glasses with easily interchanged or replaced parts. Most frames are fully recyclable, some are even made from materials that can't typically be recycled, such as milk bottle lids and beer keg caps.

7. One-stop shop – find all your ‘Good Gifts’ in one place

By buying from Oz Fair Trade, you are helping to improve the lives of many women and their families who live in extreme poverty. Full profits go back to purchasing more fair trade products. Find spoons and jewellery made from bombshells, super soft t-shirts, cards, cushion covers, bags, slippers, and lots more.

Ethical living

Ethical Living specialises in ethically made and fair trade goods. There’s a huge range of products including jewellery, felt and knitted toys, two-sided bags so kids can decide which “look they want”, clothing and shoes for adults and children, home décor and more.

Change Merchants source beautiful, fair trade products from all over the world. Fabulous cotton “pumjammies” (pyjamas or pants!) for men and women, sustainable leather passport covers, jewellery made from bomb casings, tooth fairy pillows, cufflinks and other cool stuff.

Oxfam sells fair trade gifts from around the world - chocolate! toys! spices! homewares! as well as books, greeting cards, wine, or CDs. They have lavender-filled cat and dog eye pillows, baskets and boxes galore, and lots of chocolate. Shop online or spend time in a store near you.

Biome sells everything you need for an eco-lifestyle: bags, skincare, educational toys, home décor, natural makeup, natural deodorant, crayon rocks made from soy wax, lunch boxes, sustainable clothing, cookware, Manchester and lots more. Online or in store (Queensland only).

Upcycle Studio sells a gorgeous and eclectic range of gifts made from upcycled materials. Check out their bags and accessories made from sail cloth, fire hoses and billboards, sustainable lunch boxes and water bottles, and more. Shop online or in St Peters (Sydney).

This Australian online store guarantees that all your purchases will be vegan-friendly and ethical. Look for the Dirty Hippy makeup range with truly sustainable packaging, pretty cloth nappies, stylish water bottles, mushroom elixirs, bags, clothing, eco-crayons and lots more. They also support Sea Shepherd and the Where Pigs Fly Sanctuary.

Eco at Home sells all sorts of everyday but beautiful essentials including baby olive oil soap, books on eco living, natural house paint (which actually has a pleasant smell), children’s gardening tools and gifts. Available online or in their Willoughby (Sydney) store.

Amnesty International Australia sells ethically made clothes for adults and babies, books, bags and stickers to fund their work in protecting human rights around the world. Your loved one will look great in a “Love is a human right” or “fighting bad guys” t-shirt (or romper, for a baby).

Fair Go Trading is a Perth (Australia) based retailer of fair-trade and organic goodies. Go retro with their beautiful hand-painted cake tins and kitchen canisters. Get stylish with their artisan totes and evening bags. Or browse the wide range of hemp bags, puppets, jewellery and more.

8. Support a Charity - give a gift where it's really needed

Based in Parramatta

fitted for work

Sponsor an Australian woman to go through the fantastic Fitted for Work program that helps women experiencing adversity break through barriers to get and keep work.

With Muslim Aid you can give personal or business Zakah, pay Fedyah or cleanse your income received from interest. You can choose how the money is spent, such as for sustainable development, orphan aid, health and education.

Choose from The Australian Red Cross's three donation gift cards, including the $40 Gift of Friendship (regular phone calls to lonely or isolated people).

Care Australia offers a great range, from $10 drought resistant seeds to $665 to provide a community watering pond for crops. Care Australia is non-government and non-religious.

Give the gift of sight with just $25, the cost to restore sight to one person. The Fred Hollows Foundation works in many developing areas of the world, including Australia, helping to close the gap for Indigenous health.

Give a gift that celebrates and protects animals with Humane Society. You can help protect Africa's elephants, create a better world for farmed animals, stop illegal wildlife trade and more.

Karma Currency links you to almost every charity in existence. It's perfect if you're not quite sure what makes a person tick, as you can just buy a gift voucher and your loved one chooses the charity that'll receive the money.

Oxfam Unwrapped offers a massive range of cheesy gifts for people who already have everything they need. "This gift is deep and meaningful" says the card for a $135 gift of a well, and "Mehh-rry Christmas" says the $39 Christmas goat card.

Rainforest Rescue's gift cards include a $10 cassowary care package (to plant and maintain one rainforest tree for two years) and $25 to buy back 5 square metres of the Daintree to protect it forever.

RSPCA has five gift cards representing the five freedoms for animals, including freedom from hunger and thirst, freedom from fear and distress, and freedom to express normal behaviour. A lovely set of gifts for the animal-lover that can be sent as an e-card or in the mail.

With Simply Giving, you choose a Christmas present for a disadvantaged Australian child through Barnardos, Anglicare, The Children's Hospital at Westmead and many more charities.

This is where the concept of giving to people who need it most actually started. Tear Australia is a Christian group helping the world's poor. Gifts are priced from $5 (for chickens) and $6 for preschool classes. Some gifts come with cardboard buildings for the recipient to assemble!

Unicef allows you to buy a range of gifts helping with education, clean water, nutrition, maternal health and more. For just $72 you can provide 300 polio vaccines!

Help conserve endangered animals such as tigers, orang-utans and pygmy elephants by "adopting" an animal through WWF with monthly donations, and your loved one will receive an adoption certificate, sticker, fact book and other goodies, plus optional soft toy.

StartSomeGood is a crowdfunding platform that connects you to the causes you and your loved ones care about. You can donate money and receive a "reward" in return.

9. Greeting cards – send a message and help others

Words With Heart
STATIONERY | PRINT | DESIGN

Words With Heart combines environmentally responsible production, funding for women's and girls' education projects, and words that empower. With your artwork they'll make anything from business cards and stickers to posters and notepads, and they'll use the profits to pay for education for women and girls in the developing world.

earth
greetings
100% earth friendly®

For beautiful Australian-made cards printed on 100% post-consumer waste recycled paper, head to Earth Greetings. They have cards for a wide range of occasions, and also sell wrapping paper, gift tags, bookmarks, and calendars. 10% of their profits are donated to environmental organisations.

rosie lou

Rosie Lou's Australian designed and made cards are beautiful and quirky, like the play-on-words "I love you from my head tomatoes" card, printed with vegetable ink on recycled paper. There are also gift packs of seeds, wrapping paper, notebooks and some textile items as well.

Charity Greeting Cards gives you dozens of charities to support when you buy your cards. The charities on offer include Father Chris Riley's Youth Off the Streets, The Children's Hospital at Westmead, MS, Kids Helpline and Parramatta Mission.

Customise your gift cards with Charity Card Market, a company that donates 20% of the takings to your chosen charity (over seventy to choose from!), prints the cards on eco-friendly paper and uses soy-based inks. You can even upload your own image.